17. AEF 1994

20 June 1994

His Excellency Mr Boris Yeltsin,

It is a great privilege and honour to present you with a copy of a book which I have been researching for many years, entitled:

" HUNTING IN SOUTHERN AFRICA "

The book was launched successfully at the beginning of June. Aimed at the international hunter, the book has been well received by hunting communities all over the world.

Hunting on the African continent is a spectacular experience. Southern Africa is one of the world's richest areas of bio - diversity. According to the United Nations " World Charter for Nature " Africa's biological diversity should be high on the agenda for all governments and decision makers.

The threats to the biodiversity of Africa are so great that all possible options must be exercised. These options include both non-consumptive and consumptive utilisation of wildlife resources. Of all consumptive activities, trophy hunting brings in significant revenues at a relatively low offtake of animal numbers. It is an activity which should be strongly encouraged.

Improving the hunting industry in southern Africa means giving jobs to an extra 50,000 trackers, skimmers, chefs and other hunting related personnel. It means an extra 250 international incoming flights a year. In annual revenue it means an extra 1500 million rand in foreign exchange.

We invite the hunters of your country to sample the high level of professionalism and ethicis practised by the hunting community in southern Africa. We ask you to purchase the book for your overseas visitors, colleagues and friends.

Together we can conserve Africa's breathtaking biodiversity for future generations.

Yours sincerely,

ROLF ROBERT ENDERWITZ
